Fortress of Health

Our Inner Shield

Every day, your body deals with countless invisible threats. The strength of your natural defenses plays a big role in how energized, healthy, and resilient you feel when life gets stressful.

The Invisible World Around Us

Even air that looks clean is full of life. One cubic meter can hold anywhere from hundreds to millions of living microorganisms.

- In unfiltered indoor spaces, levels can go above 3,000 CFU per cubic meter
- Outdoors in spring, up to 1,100 CFU per cubic meter. In winter, around 65 CFU per cubic meter
- In dusty, crowded spaces, levels can reach tens of thousands of CFU per cubic meter

These microorganisms include bacteria, viruses, fungal spores, microscopic parasites, and their metabolic byproducts.

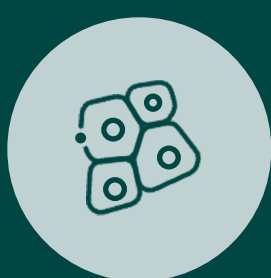

*CFU = Colony Forming Unit, a measure of viable microbe concentration.

Resistance, Your Body's Natural Armor

Resistance is your body's ability to handle everyday challenges like microbes, toxins, and inflammation. The stronger it is, the harder it is for outside factors to throw you off.

A Multi Layered Defense System

Skin is your first barrier, helping protect you from microbes and pollution

Mucous membranes produce protective fluids and enzymes that trap and neutralize harmful agents

Gut microbiota competes with unwanted microorganisms and helps maintain immune balance

Stomach acid destroys many bacteria and viruses before they enter the digestive tract

Filter organs like the liver, kidneys, and lymphatic system help remove toxins and metabolic waste

But our defenses face daily risks

Risks that increase the load

Environmental pollution
Contaminated air
Toxins
Allergens

Risks that weaken protection

Insufficient sleep
Chronic stress
Poor nutrition
Bad habits

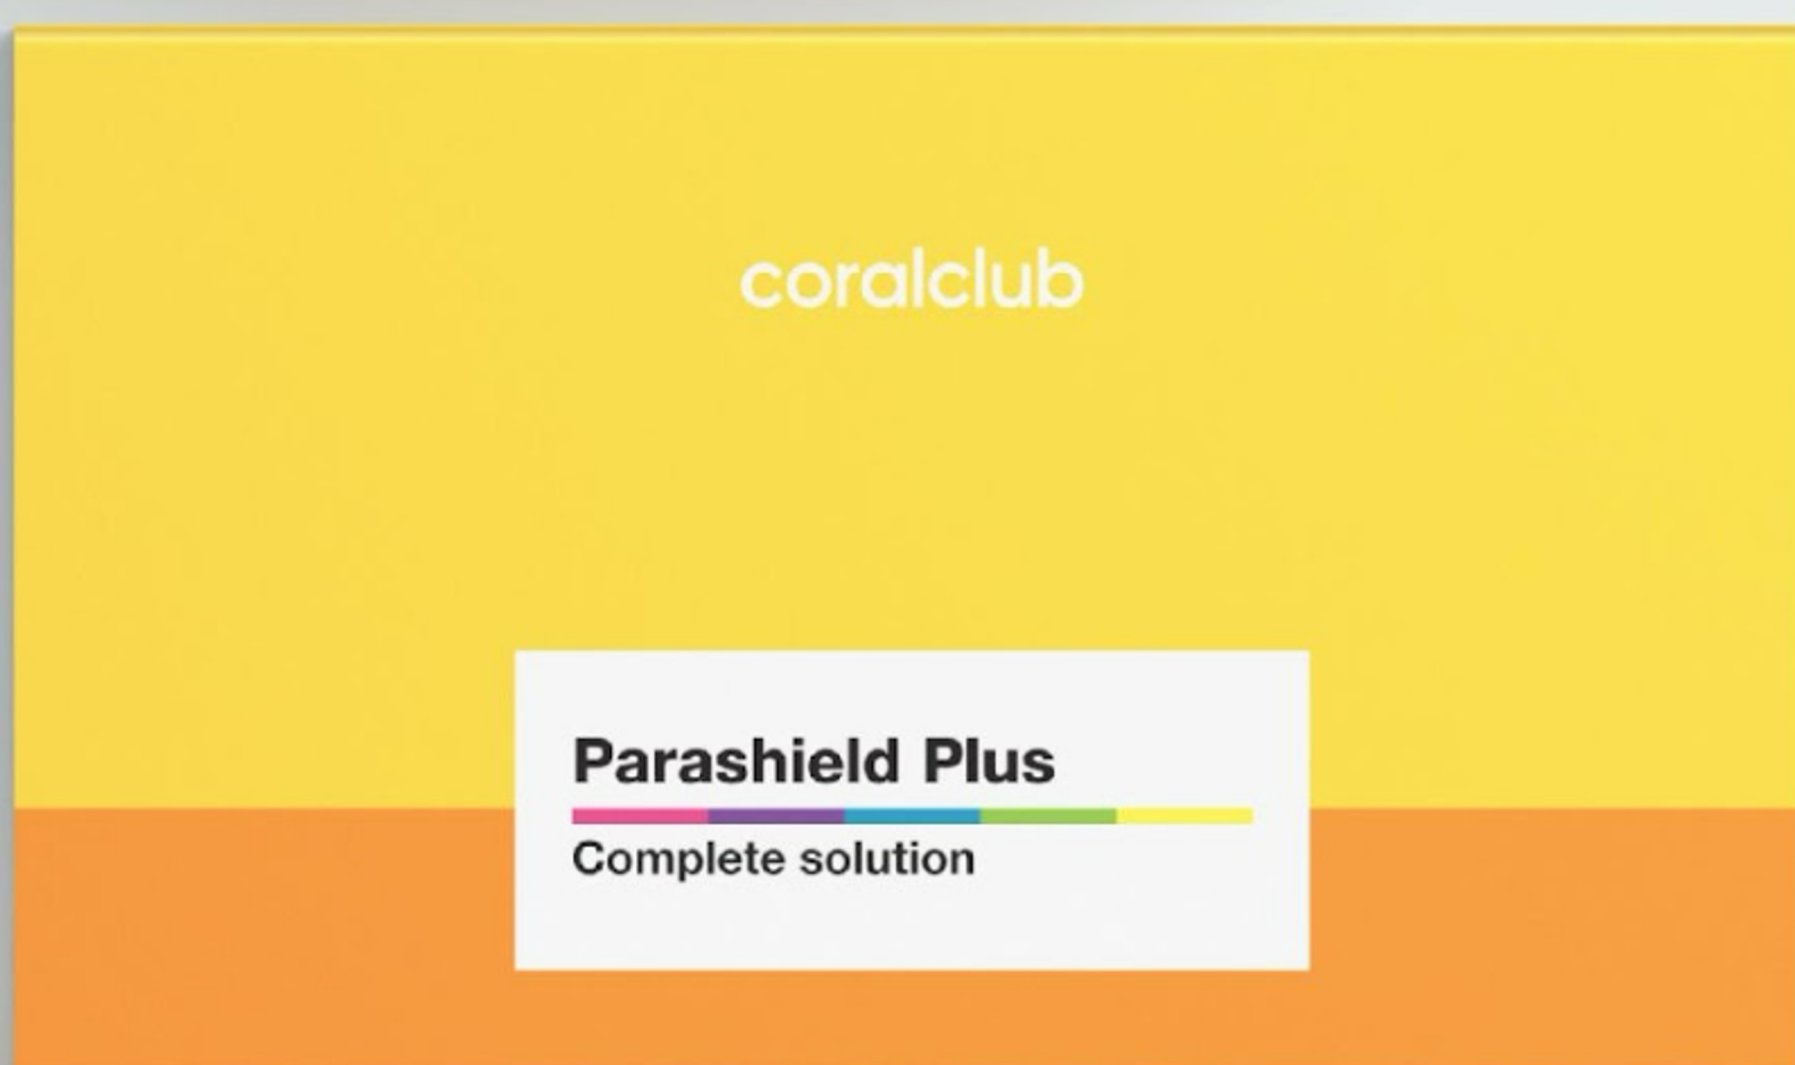

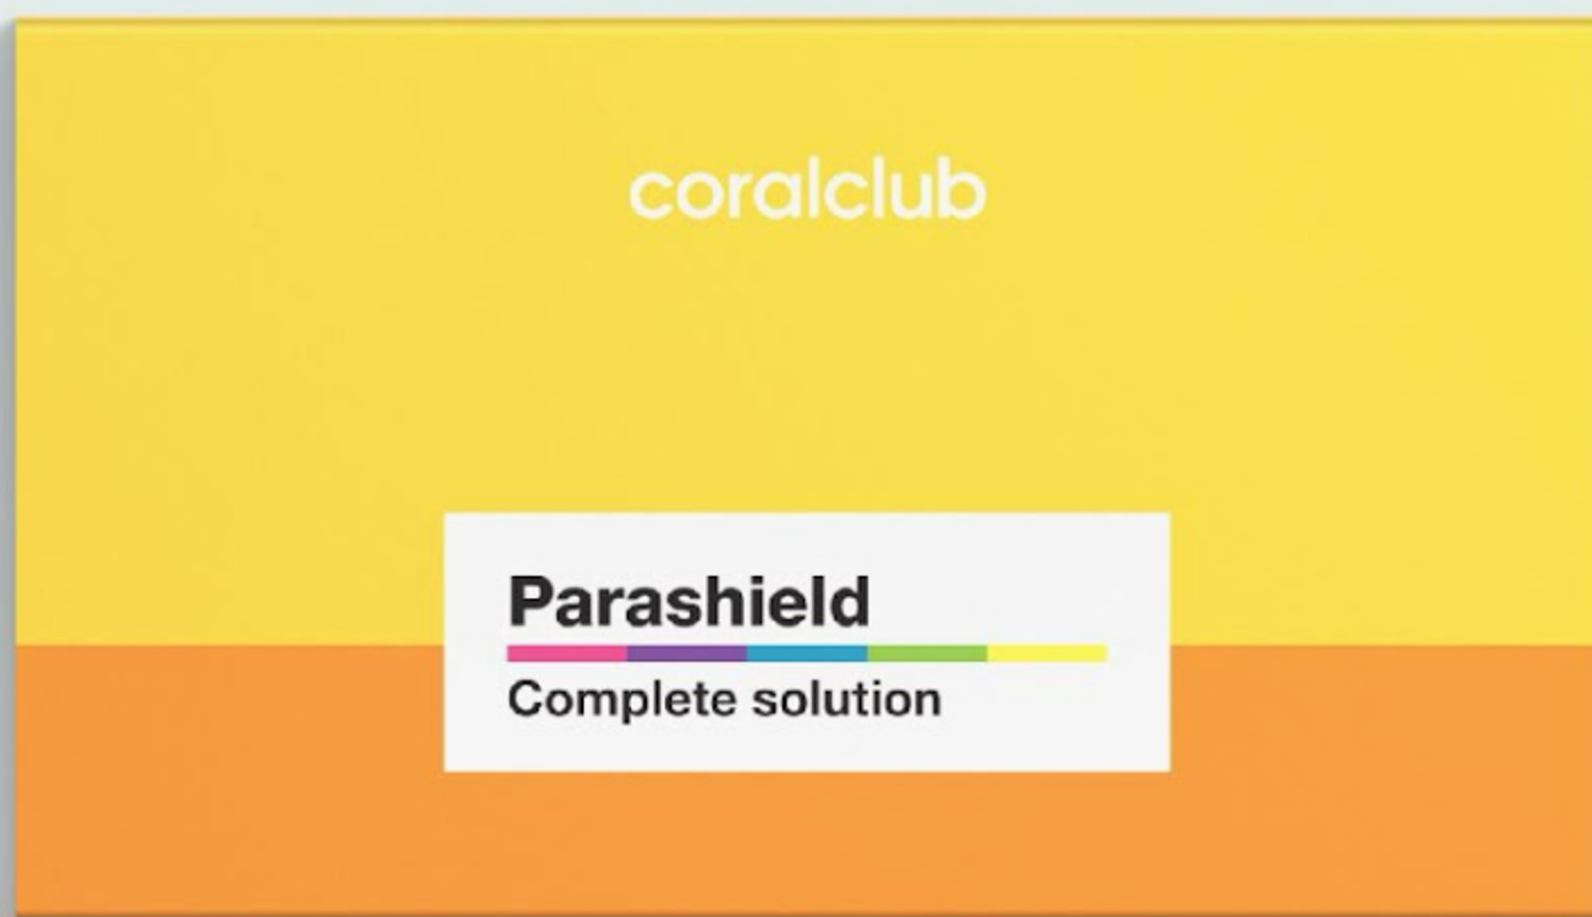

Protection Needs Support

To handle everyday outside stressors, the body needs resources, building blocks and active nutrients that help strengthen barriers and support inner balance.

Assimilator

A blend of digestive enzymes with vitamins A and D.

By supporting digestion, Assimilator helps the intestines work more efficiently and stay a strong barrier against outside stressors.

A strong barrier starts with nutrition. Enzymes help the body break down proteins, fats, and carbs so nutrients can be absorbed and used as building blocks for cells and natural defense systems. Vitamins A and D support the health and protection of the digestive tract lining, one of the body's first lines of defense.
